Blakeley presented a petition from 558 residents of Gallatin county praying for the passage of the bill closing select committee consisting of Hunt and Haskeli. Blakeley presente usual hour and began the business in hand. Considerable work was done by both branches. The principal business of the council was the discussion of Moore's registration bill in committee of the whole. Kennedy introduced a bill which prohibits gambling in any form whatever. A communication was received from John J. Ingalls, president of the United States sengalls, president of the United States senate, announcing he had received certain memorials and the committees to whom they had been referred. The bill allowing incorporated cities to increase their indebtedness goes to the governor for his signature, as does the bill relative to the formation of juries. The school text-book bill was recommended for passage.

THE COUNCIL.

Council met at 10 a. m. yesterday to enter into the forty-fourth day's legislative business. While all were present a number of members looked "rocky" as Councilman Middleton termed it and would rather be in bed. They had been to Great Falls the day before.

Council bill No. 20, relative to formation of juries, was passed by twenty affirmative votes, Blakeley voting no.

House bill No. 31, relating to gambling signs, and house bill No. 16, to establish the office of mine inspector, were reported correctly engrossed and placed on the calendar for a third reading.

The house went into committee of the whole with Rea in the chair for the consideration of douncil bill No. 22, to protect cemeteries and the remains of the dead, and house bill No., relating to minors frequenting saloons. day before.

After the usual routine, including the reading of the journal for the last three days, Kennedy from the enrollment committee, reported the following bills proper ly engrossed:

Council bill No. 7, the bridge bill; house bill No. 9, for the protection of game and fish; house bill No. 12, allowing towns and cities to incur indebtedness; house bill No. 16, to regulate the practice of medicine, and house bill No. 16, regulating compensation of justices of the peace.

Collins from the printing committee reported the following correctly printed: Council bills Nos. 41 and 42, the former was referred to the judiciary and the latter

Kennedy from the committee appointed to investigate certain offices and accounts reported as foilows:

"Mr. President: Your joint committee appointed to examine and investigate the offices and accounts of the territorial auditor and territorial treasurer begs leave to report that in accordance with the resolution under which the committee was appointed, two competent, reliable and efficient experts were employed; that they have, under the supervision of the members of the committee, thoroughly investigated of the committee, thoroughly investigated all the accounts of the two offices, examined every warrant and voucher, compared the bank accounts with the statements on the books, and investigated the condition of the two offices. The examination has been the two offices. The examination has been very satisfactory to your committee, showing that the books balance to a cent, that the cash accredited to the territory is deposited securely in the banks of Helena, that the officers have been faithful, honest and diligent in the performance of their duties, that the system of book-keeping used in the keeping of accounts is simple and accurate, and that the general management of the offices is good.

"Your committee considered the question of allowing a clerk for the auditor's office, but concluded that with the repeal of the bounty on prairie dogs and ground squirrels the work of the office so decreased the work of the office so decre that there is at present no necessity for an additional clerk."

Report placed on file.

Kennedy introduced council bill No. 44, to prohibit gambling in all forms. Read first and second times, and ordered printed.

The council then resolved itself into committee of the whole, Hatch in the chair. Moore's registration bill was resumed for consideration. Five sections were read, amended and adopted. When the committee arose Hatch reported progress and was granted further time. Recess until 2 p. m.

Upon resuming the first business was a report by Bickford upon council bill No. 14, providing for the appointment of a public examiner. It was returned without recommendation and placed on general orders.

Mine Superintendents in Helena Opposed to the Roberts Mine Inspection Bill.

Enacted into a Law

Claims that It Will Cause Dissension

pendent reporter, stated his objection to the bill. He said: "The most important objection is that if this bill becomes a law dissensions will at once follow between the miners union and the mine owners. Both miners union and the mine owners. Both sides will want their man appointed in ithe one that succeeds will be antagonistic to the one that fails. It can not be otherwise. Labor and capital in mining enterprises have, so far as my knowledge goes, always been on friendly terms. This is no time to stir up strife which will be the result should this bill become a law, but I have no idea that it will ever adorn our statutes."

no idea that it will ever adorn our statutes."

Capt. Brannagan said the bill was a piece of demagogy. It will work a hardship upon those whom it is expected to benefit. The captain said he had especial reference to poor men who lease mines. He characterized it as a foolish measure throughout for the reason that it gave the mine inspector too much liberty and authority.

Mr. Couch asked one of the members of the committee if, in event of a cave in a mine, would the provisions of the bill injure the company owning the property. On being assured in the negative he expressed himself as satisfied with the measure. The first thing done at the afternoon session was the signing, by the speaker, of council bill No. 7, authorizing counties to build free bridges; house bill No. 10, providing for the compensation of justices of the peace; house bill No. 12, enabling cities and towns to incur indebtedness; house bill No. 9, for the better protection of game and fish, and house bill No. 6, regulating the practice of medicine in the territory.

Rea, of the committee of the whole, reported council bill No. 22, with an amendment, and recommended the adoption of the same and that the bill as amended do pass. Also, house bill No. 29, with an amendment, and recommendation that as amended it do pass. The report was received and the amendments adopted.

Council bill No. 22 and house bill No. 22 were ordered to be engrossed.

Mr. Emrich, of the Rimini mines, is opposed to the bill for various reasons. He says that in the first place a sufficient salary to procure a competent man is not provided. It gives the inspector an opportunity to teil a mine owner that he isn't using the proper pattern of a hoist or englise, or that he should use a different cable, and many other things which would annoy the owners, and which would be done nine times out of ten merely to show authority. Again there are very few mine owners who care to have a man go through their mines for the purpose of experting, under the guise of the authority of a mine inspector. Mr. Emrich said that if a mine inspector is really needed he feels more favorable to a bill embodying the provisions of the law in force in force in Pennsylvania.

Mr. Roberts, author of the bill, says that Marcus Daly recently expressed an opinion on his bill, saying he was satisfied with it and that the Anaconda company had no fear for any bill; that their mines are at all times safe and that his bill would not injure them. Mr. Roberts stated that he knew there was strong opposition to the bill, but the people who oppose it fur-Mr. Emrich, of the Rimini mines, is of Council bill No. 22 and house bill No. 22 were ordered to be engrossed.

The house went into committee of the whole, Rea in the chair, to consider house bill No. 21, by Haskell to create a territorial board of examiners. Thirty-two sections were read without any comment, when Murray said he had been looking all along to see where the compensation came in. Haskell explained that the board of examiners was to be composed of territorial officers who already received compensation, and that it was not intended to give them additional pay for performing the work required by the bill.

The committee decided to report the bill back to the house, recommending that as amended it do pass.

House bill No. 19, to amend section 228 not injure them. Mr. Roberts stated that he knew there was strong opposition to the bill, but the people who oppose it furnish sufficient evidence why it should become a law. He is of the opinion that the $5,000 miners who are employed in Montana know what is better for them than a few mine owners. A plank in the platform upon which he was elected particularly endorsed a measure of the kind provided for in his bill and he intends to stand by it, no matter what the result. He knew by his advocacy of the bill he would be excluded from the Butte mines, would not be allowed to work in them, but he didn't care for that. His bill would work no hardship on any one. Put a good, honest and competent man in the position and the result need not be feared. He knew the persons opposing the measure and their animus. There are mines in Butte not fit fit for a man to enter and the owner, knowing this, opposes the bill. owner, knowing this, opposes the bill.

The rumor is current that Thompson, of Silver Bow, is against the bill, which leaves Mantle and Roberts its only champions from their county. Whether a just or unjust measure, it seems to be pretty definitely settled that the Roberts bill will not become a law.
